AirPods 3 may drop force
detection control for touch sensors

San Francisco,
Apple is reportedly working on future AirPods that could come with simple touch sensors instead of force detection for control for an improved experience. A new patent suggests that the tapping that is currently required to control the AirPods may be changed next time, reports Apple Insider.

The current system uses a force sensor, combined with an accelerometer, to effect a change when a user double-tap on an AirPods stalk.

"AirPods have an exterior surface that defines the shape of the earbud such that the earbud is sized and shaped to be at least partially inserted into a user's ear. And a touch-sensitive sensor positioned within the housing and adjacent to the exterior surface," reads the patent application. With the upcoming feature changing the volume on a pair of AirPods might be done by simply swiping across the surface of one.

According to the report, Apple's patent application is more concerned about the specifics of how such sensor routes data to the device than it is about the practical uses of the idea. Apple is also reportedly planning to add Ambient Light Sensors in future versions of AirPods to monitor data such as blood oxygen level and heart rate.

Philippines govt official caught having sex during Zoom meet

London,
In yet another case of a Zoom meeting gone awry, a government official in the Philippines was caught having sex with his secretary during a regular virtual session, the media reported.

According to a report in the Sun on Thursday, the incident came to light as the official, Captain Jesus Estil of the Fatima Dos village council in the province of Cavite, appeared to be unaware that his camera was on.

Footage shows that the person had sex in a far corner of the room while the meeting was on.

Before engaging in the actual act, Estil approached the device in what appeared to be an attempt to turn off the camera.

The call that took place on August 26 was reportedly part of a regular council meeting.

Unaware that the camera was on, Estil and the woman attended to the urgent call of their carnal desire, while other participants continued with the council meeting.

Estil rejoined the call after completing his task at the far corner of the room.

But a staff member who attended the call recorded the scene and the video eventually became public, which led some villagers to file a petition to oust the official for the misconduct.

The pair reportedly asked for forgiveness, but the country's Department of Interior and Local Government appears to have made uother participants continuep its mind to relieve Estil from his duty.

"This is not simple misconduct, but grave misconduct," DILG Barangay Affairs Summons and Complains Chief Richard Geronimo was quoted as saying by The Sun.

Earlier, a similar incident was reported from Brazil when a pair was caught having sex during a Zoom meeting of the Rio de Janeiro city council.
